

Royal Perth Hospital Nursing Research Foundation

The RPH Nursing Research Foundation is a not for profit, non government funded organisation.

All money raised by the RPH NRF goes directly to promote and support research that advances the health of our patients.

The ultimate aims are to ensure that all patients who attend RPH and Bentley public hospitals receive nursing care that is underpinned by the best available research evidence. And to support patients in understanding and better managing their health care conditions.

Some examples of RPH NRF nursing research projects include:

- Preventing medical emergencies and death of patients through better assessment and early intervention
- Preventing complications from medication administration errors
- Promoting patient selfcare and empowerment of their health care needs through comprehensive patient education
- Pressure injury prevention
- Glaucoma management
- Falls prevention
- Preventing and responding to mental health emergencies.
